

Listing a Clock on Horton's Sellers Direct Antique Clock Sales

What we need

- ✿ At least one good photo, preferably more. Cell phone cameras are quite acceptable, but please shoot against a plain background, in natural light if possible. Daylight CFL or LED bulbs or camera flash are good choices for indoor photos. Accurate photos result in happy buyers.
- ✿ A short description, noting any shortcomings or defects, as well as pointing out strengths. Include the make and model if known. An honest description is least likely to result in an unhappy buyer.
- ✿ The listing price.
- ✿ Whether you are willing to ship the clock (professionally or personally), or require local pickup.
- ✿ Your name, address, phone number at which you can be reached most times, and an email address. Indicate what you want shown with your clock: Name (optional), email address and/or phone number. We will include your city and state so potential buyers can decide if shipping or pick-up is appropriate.

What we provide

- ✿ Large photo listings on a website that receives several hundred visits per day, and is devoted to antique clock sales.
- ✿ Emails to over 1000 subscribers that include pictures of clocks currently listed, with price and short descriptions. We have an outstanding group of clock collectors, decorators, and antique retailers who follow our auctions and are willing buyers of quality clocks.

How this works

- ✿ After you email us the photos, description, and required information we will promptly post your clock(s) on the Sellers Direct website and within two weeks send out an email to our 900+ subscribers featuring a photo and description of your clock. The fee to list a clock on Horton's Sellers Direct is 5% of the sale price, payable only if your clock sells. You must tell us when your clock sells, and for how much, so that we can mark it sold and send you a PayPal invoice. You can also pay by personal check. Your posting will remain online for one month, after which you must reduce the price by 10% or more to continue the listing for another month, or you can withdraw the listing. There is no charge to renew the listing, and there is no charge if you choose to end the listing.
